

IT'S ALL ABOUT ME

Getting on PrEP was a hard decision for me. I spent three months trying to decide whether or not this was the right decision for me. At first it was about what people would think, because not many knew or understood how this pill could prevent you from contracting HIV. So, after three months I decided to make my first appointment for PrEP. After eight months of consistently taking the pill, I decided that PrEP wasn't for me, because of my own personal health reasons. However, due to my experience I am now an advocate for the medication and can be a leader that educates others throughout my community.
